Tribute Wall

“ Being informed tonight of your passing makes me regret not hugging you a little longer at the firework display some years ago. But I've always been told only the good die young so I never dreamed that would be the last time. I can sit here and work my brain to it's maximum ability and I can't think of a single memory that includes you that didn't have one of us in the doghouse. You were a crazy, hard headed, onery individual but full of love and well let's be honest bad ideas. A good example of the kind of guy that God only made one of because another person anywhere close to being comparable to you would be some kind of terrorist convention. Thank you for everything you ever did for me and loving us unconditionally like you did. Your memory will live on forever. I promise you kill bill will not be forgotten. I will continue to blame all my bad ideas and times of causing trouble on you. RIP
