“ Kevin will be missed, Kevin and I have only know each other for about fifteen years, but we became very close friends. He and I talked about everything and anything. He had just been at my house Thursday evening. He was a bright spot in my daily living, one nite or early morning this last winter, about 4am and 3degrees outside he showed up nearly out of gas. Well I got out of bed and out in the weather to the Cstore for you guessed it gas, for my efforts he gave me a piece of Francoma pottery. I loved Kevin he was my friend and I was his friend. To Kev's family, and I feel like I know you all, please rest in the knowledge that he loves you, I'm sorry for your loss. He was one in ten million. Sincerely Dixie Mitchell.

Hey idk if you remember me, Brittiany Dickerson, I was wondering about y'all the other day and a few others. Anyhow I just want you to know I'm sending prayers your way. I loved Kevin and I know he loved you... I was drowning in people who didn't know him or only knew of him. Anyhow peace be with you.

My heart goes out to anyone that knew Kevin, these past few months Roy and Kevin started hanging out more you could always hear when Kevin was coming or when he was leaving.. anyway Kevin brought so much joy to Roy they would talk about their younger days and shit they had done and laugh. I loved it for both of them. They also had some heart to heart talks that got in both of their feelings i think more than they realized. Kevin was Kevin!!!! He will be missed by all that knew him, Roy's wife Jaime
