“ This is Mark's mother, I would like to post a few special moments that my son and I spent. They are memories I will never forget. My son was an amazing person. Funny, level headed, he had the biggest heart I've ever had the privilege of being loved by. I remember the first time I was going to move in with him, he was living in Ottawa Kansas. We had talked about it for a long time prior of we actually moveing in with him. We were both so excited for this move to happen that we talked every day for like month and a half. And my hero finally took me to Kansas, to be with my son. It was one of the most positive things i've ever did in my life. We figured out that we were more alike then we could ever emagined. My son was was going to school and I would stay at home and clean and try to plan things like dinner and things for us to do. But knowing that we probably wouldn't be doing what I planed because Mark had different ones for us. And in all reality his plans were always better then mine. This all this took place in 2014. He really knew what was best for the both of us, he would always say don't worry Mom I have everything figured out, I know what's best for us. He was funny like that and you really didn't know. He made me laugh a lot when I was sad anytime when I needed a lift me up he was there. He was a genius, and a short life to even experience the genius in him. I'm going to miss my son very much. He will forever be in my heart and in my thoughts. And know i have another guardian anglewatching over me. I love and miss my son so much. May toy rest in peace son.
